THE ART INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO was incorporated May 24, 1879, for the "founding and maintenance of schools of art and design, the formation and exhibition of collections of objects of art, and the cultivation and extension of the arts of design by any appropriate means." The Museum building upon the Lake Front, first occupied in 1893, is open to the public every week day from 9 to 5, Sundays from 1 to 5. Admission is free to members and their families at all times, and free to all upon Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

The Art School, in the same building, includes departments of Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Decorative Designing and Architecture.

All friends of the Art Institute are invited to become members. Annual Members pay a fee of ten dollars for the year. Upon the payment of one hundred dollars annual members become Life Members and are thenceforth exempt from dues. Governing members pay one hundred dollars upon election and twenty-five dollars a year thereafter. Upon the payment of four hundred dollars governing members become Governing Life Members and are thenceforth exempt from dues. All receipts from Life memberships are invested and the income only expended.

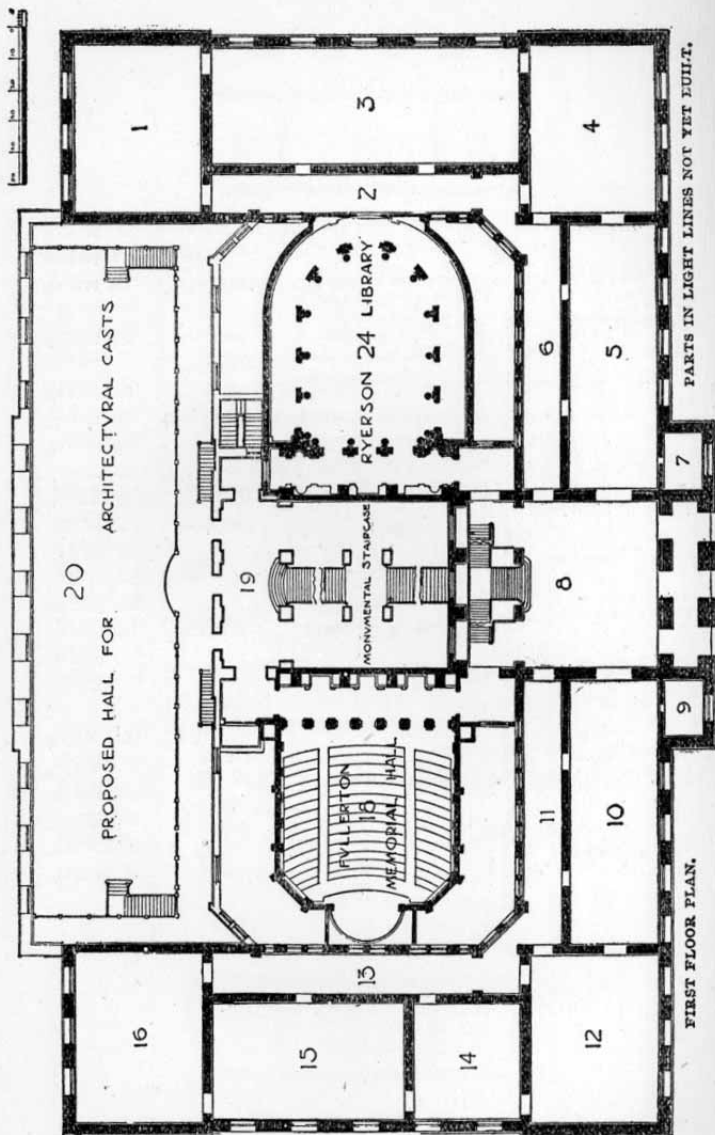

All members are entitled, with their families and visiting friends, to admission to all exhibitions, receptions, public lectures and entertainments given by the Art Institute, and to the use of the Ryerson reference library upon art.

JEAN ÉMILE VAN CAUWELAERT

JEAN ÉMILE VAN CAUWELAERT.

JEAN ÉMILE VAN CAUWELAERT was born in April, 1866, in Ghent, Belgium. He showed artistic proclivities from earliest childhood, drawing spirited reminiscences of a religious procession at the age of six with chalk upon the kitchen wall. In the common school, which he left in his thirteenth year, he and the now well-known artist, Van Melle, were chosen to decorate the borders of the school diplomas. For a time he attended the Atheneum, a high school free to pupils of high standing, but soon, his father being disabled by an accident, he was obliged to relinquish his idea of becoming an artist and to take up the trade of cabinet making for the support of his mother and her three children. The knowledge of architectural drawing acquired at the Atheneum was now of good service to him.

Upon his father's death, when he was nineteen years old, he changed his trade and found employment with a house decorator, with whom he worked successfully until he was drawn for military service. During his three years and a half of service he studied both art and music, attending the Academy of Fine Arts at Ghent in his spare hours, and being attached to the regimental band. In the Academy he overtaxed his eyes and was threatened with blindness, but he succeeded in winning first the second prize, and then for two successive years the first prize. Later he returned to the pursuit of interior decoration and won medals for tapestry paintings at Tunis, Spa, Brussels, Ostend, Ghent and other cities, but the business was unprofitable, and he went to Amsterdam and employed himself copying paintings in the Ryks Museum, and selling them to tourists. Through all this time, as mechanic, soldier, decorator, musician, copyist, he never relinquished his ambition to become a painter.

It was while copying a painting in the Ryks Museum in 1894 that his work arrested the attention of a gentleman from Chicago,* through whose interest he was enabled to study a year in Paris and a year in Brussels. In 1898 he offered his first picture, a landscape, to the Salon du Champ de Mars, and it was accepted, favorably hung, and well received by the artistic world. In 1899, a year later, his second offering, "Le Retour á la Ferme, en Flandre," was hung in the same Salon, and elicited much favorable comment. The French Government, and at the same time the Museum of Adelaide, Australia, made overtures for the purchase of this picture, but preference was given to a higher offer received through a Paris art dealer from a gentleman in Rio Janeiro, Brazil. With the proceeds of this transaction the artist purchased his present home at 19 Fort Straat, Ghent. This is the only important picture he has sold, and all his works since

* Mr. Samuel Gans.

1894, with this exception, have been kept together, an extraordinary circumstance. In 1900 he exhibited in the old Salon "La Sortie des Veaux; l'entêté." In 1901 his Salon picture "Passage de la Lys à Afsné" obtained for him the honorable title "Membre Associé de la Société Nationale des Beaux Arts à Paris."

M. van Cauwelaert has been in Chicago for several weeks, and will remain during the present exhibition.
